Invitation

Ladies and gentlemen, dear friends of Prognos

We are delighted to invite you to our lunch debate "Europe in an uncertain global world – economic perspectives until 2045" of Prognos. On Friday, 12 April 2019, we welcome you at our Brussels location in the Residence Palace at Schuman.

Together with you, we would like to look ahead into a decisive year for the European Union and discuss with you the longer-term economic potentials of the continent in an increasingly complex global world economy.

To this, we invite you to our event with a presentation of the new Germany Report 2025 | 2035 | 2045 by the Chief Economist of Prognos, Dr Oliver Ehrentraut, and a delicious snack at our Brussels location in the Residence Palace. Our report is one of the only long-term forecasts on the European economy and society that also offers key insights on recent discussions about trade barriers, disruptions in global value chains, digital transformation etc.

A detailed programme can be found below.

Germany Report: Europe, Germany and its regions 2025 | 2035 | 2045

How will Europe, Germany and its regions develop over the next 30 years? The Prognos Germany Report 2025 | 2035 | 2045 answers this question – and offers detailed forecasts on the medium- and long-term developments of the European economy and society.

The report has been published every four to five years since 1964 and is the only comprehensive long-term forecast on the future of the German economy and society. It provides detailed forecasts on the medium- and long-term development of the economy as a whole, sectors, federal states and social systems in Germany and Europe. To this end, it uses proven methods to examine global framework conditions, demographic change and technological progress as well as changes in relevant policy areas. The report also looks at trends and drivers that influence economic development and are themselves influenced by it.
